

REID seminar: Saturday, 21 March, 9.30am to 1.00pm, at Wallington East Girls College

Te Whekenui a Muturangi: Using visual arts, music and dance to explore and enrich a local Māori legend

Presenters:

Judith Urry, Associate Principal at Northland School

Judith will introduce the Reggio Emilia concept of children's "one-hundred languages". She'll explore the legend using music and sound, one of the "hundred languages".

Lisa Terreni, lecturer at VUW

Lisa will use visual art as a means of unpacking key elements of the legend.

Nancy Fulford, dance and drama teacher at Wellington East Girls College.

Nancy will pull expressions of the legend together through creating dance scenarios with you.

Different Place (for REID): Wellington East Girls College, Austin Street, Mt Victoria
(Parking available at the school)

Participants: Kaiako/ teachers in early childhood services and schools

School News, Feb 2020: "Teachers hope to end "near death" of arts in schools. They recognise that a narrow curriculum neglects the full range of significant human capacities"

Cost: $75 (plus GST). Register now to explore and connect to the arts in education.
